GREAT FALLS PLAN CALLED HAZARDOUS

Mr. Weeks Gives Congress Report Condemning Levering Improvement Project.

"Exceedingly hazardous experiment and one that the government should not undertake," is the opinion of the Army engineers signed by Brig. Gen. H. Taylor, senior member of the board casy hicks. When I approach and transmitted to Congress yester- the paying teller to draw out all day by Secretary Weeks, as chairman of the Federal Power Commission, after a study of the so-called Levering plan for harnessing Great

The author of the plan thus dis-credited is J. H. Levering, a Los Angeles engineer. He proposes erection of two earthen dams in the Potomac river, the lower one near Chain

The report again lays stress on the desirability of constructing a masonry dam as already recommended by the Army engineers, which it says "is in accordance with conservative and successful practice."

Summary and Conclusions. In summarizing the finding of the board, after observing that the Lever-ing plans furnish too little information to enable a clear idea of the method and details of construction proposed by Mr. Levering, the report

"The art of constructing earthen dams is one that has been evolved from experience. The strains in such dams are not susceptible of rigid analvsis, and the wise course is to adopt designs in accordance with experi-ence and good precedent. The Lever-ing proposals are novel, and contemplate application to a new construc-tion of great magnitude details that have never been successfully tested anywhere, even on a small scale. Pru-dence and reasonable regard for the money of the government and the in-terests and safety of the people of the locality dictate the rejection of this plan, which, as shown by the discussion, cannot be regarded as having the elements of safety and stability that should characterize such con

Masonry dams for the development of power have been built everywhere. It is possible to apply to them the usual engineering methods of analysis with some certainty that the theoretical deductions will be justified by subsequent experience and that the money invested will not be lost not the lives of people living nearby placed in jeopardy.

Masonry Dam Commended. The plans already recommended by this board for developing power at Chain bridge propose a masonry dam of well recognized type, whose design is in accordance with conserv-ative and successful practice. The head to be developed, 100 feet, is not unusually, great, and we feel sure that the dam is sufficiently strong to withstand all the strains that it will withstand all the strains that it will be called upon to undergo.

"Believing that all the features of the case that we were desired to consider have been adequately discussed in the preceding portion of this report, we close by stating categorically that we regard the Levering type of dam, whether at Chain bridge of the case of or at Great Falls, as an exceedingly hazardous experiment and one that the government should not undertake."

ADDS $200,000 FOR WORK.

Senator Norris Proposes Money for Waterpower Project.

An amendment to the Army appropriation bill offered yesterday by Senator Norris of Nebraska proposes an initial appropriation of $200,000 to begin work on the waterpower de-velopment at Great Falls, in accordance with the plans contained in the report of Maj. C. M. Tyler of the Army Engineer Corps.

The bill, as reported to the Senate by the military affairs committee, contains an item of $200,000 for beginning work on the increased water supply for the District in accordance with the report made by Maj. Tyler. Senator Norris proposes to add $200,-000 more and begin work on both the projects.
